Medicare: Introduction

By David Parra, Associate State Director - AARP Arizona

This article offers an introduction to Medicare and is the first in a series of articles on this subject.

What is Medicare

Medicare is a federal health insurance program for persons who are 65 or older, younger if disabled, and persons with end-stage renal disease.

Three Parts

Medicare offers hospital insurance (Part A), medical insurance (Part B) and prescription drug insurance (Part D).

Two Options

The coverage offered by Medicare comes in one of two options: Traditional Medicare or Medicare Advantage (also known as Part C). These two options by law must offer the same coverage; however, they work differently, primarily in terms of access to service providers and cost. Choosing Traditional Medicare or Medicare Advantage is an important decision beneficiaries will need to make early on in the enrollment process.

Medicare and Other Insurance Coverage

Medicare does not cover all services or expenses, and may be combined with other insurance coverage such as Medigap, employer retiree health care insurance, union health coverage, veteran's benefits, military retiree benefits (TRICARE), the Federal Employee Health Benefits Program (FEHB), and long-term care insurance.

Medicare Savings Program and Extra Help

Additionally, there are two very important programs that help those with limited income: the Medicare Savings Program, which offers assistance related to Parts A and B, and Extra Help, which offers assistance with Part D.

Eligibility:

To be eligible for Medicare a person must be 65 years or older. Disabled persons can obtain Medicare even if younger than 65. They become eligible after receiving disability benefits for 24 months. Persons with end-stage renal disease may obtain Medicare right away.

Enrollment

When enrolling in Medicare for the first time, applicants will have seven months to enroll, starting with the third month before the month they turn 65. Disabled persons use the 25th month after they started receiving disability benefits to determine their initial enrollment period. If a person enrolls during the first three months of their initial enrollment period, coverage will start the first day of their birthday month. Now if their birthday falls on the first day of the month then coverage begins the first day of the prior month. It is important to understand that premium and enrollment penalties for Parts B and D may apply for late enrollment. Now, those who do not enroll on Medicare at age 65 because they are still working and have creditable health coverage through their employer, will not incur the late enrollment penalty. This also applies to spouses. Upon losing employment or creditable coverage, they will have a period of eight months to enroll in Medicare without a penalty. (Keep in mind that retiree insurance and COBRA do not count as creditable coverage). For those already receiving Social Security benefits before turning 65, the Medicare enrollment process starts automatically. All others will need to start the process themselves.

Definition of Five Key Terms

Finally, as with other insurance plans, Medicare does not pay all costs; there is cost-sharing. The beneficiary's portion is known as "out-of-pocket" and may include deductibles, copayments, and coinsurance (the premium is not considered an out-of-pocket cost). Following is a definition of five key terms.

- Premium: the amount you pay to obtain your health plan (usually paid monthly).
- Deductible: the annual amount you must reach in out-of-pocket before the plan starts to pay its share.
- Copayment: a fixed amount you pay for visits; this may also apply to services.
- Coinsurance: the percentages of cost shared by the plan and the insured after the deductible is met.
- Out-of-Pocket Limit: The maximum annual amount you could pay for covered services (in the form of deductibles, copayments and coinsurance). If you reach this limit within the year, the plan will pay 100% of the cost for the remainder of the year.

Polishing a Diamond Warehouse215 at Bentley Projects

The newly renovated event venue, Warehouse215 at Bentley Projects, is a welcome change of pace from bland hotel meeting rooms and conference centers. It is a multi-purpose space serving the area with a diverse set of options for corporate events, weddings, quinceanera, galas, large receptions with live music, sit-down dinners, intimate cocktail parties, rehearsals, trade shows, fundraisers, business meetings, photo and film shoots, and more.

Located in the heart of Phoenix's urban-chic Warehouse District, Warehouse215 is 10,000 square feet of flexible interior space and 3,000 square feet of beautifully landscaped patios. It is one of the most versatile private event spaces in Arizona and was professionally reengineered by some of the Valley's top architects and designers. "We carefully evaluated what the marketplace is looking for and incorporated those demands into what we are building," said Bentley Calverley, owner of Warehouse215 and Bentley Gallery, a contemporary art gallery also located on the Bentley Projects property.

The Warehouse215 building is a 1918 converted linen laundry with industrial details and modern amenities, a few blocks from Chase Field and the Phoenix Convention Center. The venue boasts original brick walls, wood-beam bow truss ceiling and clerestory windows. It has been converted into a modern, multi-functional space, which can be customized to meet a variety of needs and tastes. The renovated building perfectly captures the young, creative spirit of Phoenix while reminding us of its industrial past.

Downtown Phoenix Magazine, stated, "... the transformed space quite simply has character, from original brick walls to the high clerestory windows that shed light on the huge, airy spaces."

The venue has been the site of numerous non-profit organizations' events, such as Phoenix Suns Charities, Arizona Bar Association, Arizona Opera, ASU, Childsplay, Habitat for Humanity, Phoenix Community Alliance, United Way, and many others. A connection to the local community is important to Bentley Calverley, who is a Warehouse District board member and an active member of the Downtown Phoenix Alliance. She explained, "We are committed to helping Phoenix, the community where we work and live -- and where our ideas, people and resources can make a difference."

CONSUMER ALERT!

NEW SCAM HAS SMALL BUSINESS CUSTOMERS CALLING FAKE CALL CENTER

APS urges all customers to be aware of possible fraud

PHOENIX – Several small businesses in the Phoenix metro area have been called by individuals falsely representing themselves as APS employees. The potential victims are instructed to call a toll-free number to pay their electric bill under threat of having service disconnected within the hour.

The false number goes to a phone system that acts and sounds like the actual APS call center. Customers are asked to select a number for the service they require, including reporting an outage. After selecting the option to pay your bill, an individual picks up the phone and says, “This is Wendy (or another name), thanks for calling APS. How can I help you?”

If a potential fraud victim begins to question the fake APS employee, the response is rude, followed by a disconnection of the call.

APS security, local law enforcement and the FBI are currently working together to apprehend those responsible.

To help customers from becoming a victim of consumer scams, including the most recent attempts, APS provides the following suggestions:

- The only valid numbers to the customer call center are listed on customer bills.
- If there is ever a question about the validity of an email, website or person claiming to be an APS representative, call the APS Customer Care Center immediately at 602-371-7171 in order to verify this information.
- Recognize the signs of a phishing email: mismatched fonts, missing hyperlinks, improper grammar and misspellings.
- Never share credit card information with an unverified source. Customers who pay by credit card at aps.com will be directed to the KUBRA EZ-Pay website which asks the customer to enter a “captcha” validation code. Any other credit card payment site is fraudulent and should not be used (A “captcha” typically uses a set of letters and numbers that the user is required to manually retype and submit).

APS, Arizona's largest and longest-serving electricity utility, serves nearly 1.2 million customers in 11 of the state's 15 counties. With headquarters in Phoenix, APS is the principal subsidiary of Pinnacle West Capital Corp. (NYSE: PNW).

Healing Racism Series

The Center for the Study of Race and Democracy and the Healing Racism Committee Present

The Prison Pipeline

There are two major institutions guiding youth on the journey to adulthood: school and prison.

The United States, the country with the highest incarceration rate in the world, spends $88,000 annually on each incarcerated child, while only $10,500 per child on education.<sup>1</sup> Systemically racialized policies criminalize minor school violations and funnel students out of public schools and into the criminal justice system. Students of color are especially vulnerable and most often affected by "zero-tolerance" policies and discriminatory applications of discipline.<sup>2</sup>

Engage with experts, community leaders, and peers as we examine the school-to-prison pipeline and how to change systems that prioritize incarceration over education.

This is the second forum in a series addressing "Difficult Dialogues."

The Healing Racism Committee facilitates public discussions concerning current events and topics related to racism, Arizona communities and American society. Dialogues are designed to bring together academic experts, community leaders, and citizens for engaging discussions that encourage critical thinking and positive change.
